FAILURE TO HIDE BODY IS BREAKING POINT COURT TOLD

Joseph Savage Makes Impassioned Plea
For the State

BLAMES LEOPOLD FOR USING FOOT

Had Body Been Pushed
Well Into Culvert
Clue Was Possible

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Failure to hide sufficiently the body of Robert Franks was the breaking point in the plot of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, according to the state's analysis of the crime given today by Judge Caverly by Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorney.

In impassioned denunciation of the defendant and with waving arms and pounding fists, Mr. Savage told the court that if Leopold had forced the body well into the culvert, instead of pushing it with his foot, it would not have been found.

"They would not have been apprehended in a hundred thousand years," said Mr. Savage.

He described the attempt to get $10,000 ransom from Bobby's father, pointing out that identification of the body became known to Mr. Franks only five minutes before he received his last message from "George Johnson," the name used to sign the ransom letter.

Mr. Savage asserted that Leopold and Loeb had drawn their plans so fine that if the father had followed directions and gone to a drug store in a cab furnished by the kidnappers, he would have been sent scurrying to a railroad station, there to board a train, due to leave a few minutes later.

In the parlor car the boys had placed a letter, addressed to Mr. Franks and giving full directions on how to throw the money from the moving train.

"They would have reached the designated point in their automobile at that precise moment if the train was on time," said Mr. Savage. "How could they have been traced. No one knew whence came the telephone call to Mr. Franks nor who has ordered the cab sent to his home."

"No one would have known who telephoned the drug store and the father would have had no chance to notify the police in advance of where he had told to go or how to dispose of the money."

"It was a coldly intellectual plan, devilish in its deliberation," said Mr. Savage.

BOYS LEAVE THIS AFTERNOON ON TWO DAY CAMP ON FLINT CREEK

The Y. M. C. A. boys left at three o'clock sharp, loaded in trucks, for the Griffin Farm on Flint Creek between the Twin Cities and Danville. There were forty of them loaded into the two big trucks, with tents, blankets, cots and 'eats.' The boys will be under the supervision of the Boy's Work Department of the Y. M. C. A. with Robert D. Edwards and Samuel E. Arvidson in charge, assisted by Robert Roy, Seybourne Lynne, C. D. Patterson and J. L. Proctor.

Good equipment, good organization, good fellowship and healthful recreation will assure all boys a good time. The swimming hole, the trout line and fellowship around the camp fire will make this outing a real pleasure for every boy.

Something will be going on at all hours of the day to keep the boys happy. There will be a leader for every ten boys and they will be carefully supervised at all hours.

A program suitable to the teen age boy as well as the younger boy is planned. The boys will have tents to sleep under and will get first hand experience in cooking, swimming in the old swimmin' hole on Griffin farm where a good springboard and landing will be erected, with every precaution to forestall danger to health and safety in this most enjoyable and healthful activity, will be a big feature of the outing.

The flags are placed in holders at the edge of the curbing and the decorative scheme is declared to add materially to the appearance of a street, as well as giving it a patriotic touch.

One block on Bank street already has taken up the idea and the flags will be installed in a short time.

TWO MEN HELD IN COUNTY JAIL AFTER STILL IS CAPTURED

Daring Raid Conducted
Near the Cullman
County Line

POSSE REACHES STILL BY STEALTH

Officers Crowd to the Scene and Take
Two In Custody

Taking in good part their arrest at a still about 25 miles south of the Twin Cities, a mile west of the Bee Line highway and near the Cullman line, two white men are now in the Morgan County jail. They were jailed about 1:30 o'clock this morning, by Sheriff C. E. Poole, Deputy Benj. Poole and Officer T. A. Patterson.

The raid of the officers was a daring one, but conducted in such a manner as to avoid serious difficulties. The posse approached the neighborhood of the still, which was cut to pieces later, by stealth, many times the men crawling lest their presence should become known to the men they wanted.

About midnight, the officers got to where they could see two men working about a still. They were seen to prepare the still, start a fire and go some distance into the woods for a supply of "whiskey-beer" from which whiskey is distilled.

As the men about their work would make noises, the officers would move, as the noise was being made, closer and closer to the still. At length, the men sought went for some distance into the woods to get a supply of fire wood, and when they returned, the officers had stationed themselves very near the still.

Sheriff Poole standing behind a tree stepped out as his man passed, placed a flash light and a pistol near his eyes and asked him to consider himself under arrest which he promptly did.

A similar service was performed by Deputy Ben Poole and the two men and the officers were soon speeding in an automobile to the Morgan County jail.

The arrest was made so close to the Cullman County line that some doubts have arisen as to the jurisdiction of Morgan County officers, but as a general rule that a half mile "lee-way" between counties is allowed officers in pursuit of those accused of breaking the law.

Mr. Poole stated he would very gladly surrender his prisoners to Cullman County authorities, if it should appear the proper thing to do, after further investigation.

One of the men held at the jail expressed the wish to be tried early.

HERRIOT PRESENTS PLAN TO CHAMBER

(Associated Press)

PARIS, Aug. 21.—The Dawes reparations plan and the steps taken at the London conference to make it effective were overshadowed by violent communist demonstrations in the chamber of deputies today when Premier Herriot went before the chamber and senate, read a long declaration embodying the government's case and asking for approval of the legislation.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Premier Herriot put the Dawes reparations plan and the London agreement for making it effective before the chamber of deputies this afternoon and told the members "I, for my part, have chosen, but nothing final had been done and parliament, in its turn, can choose."

The French premier emphasized that arbitration was the great principle established at the London conference and asserted France would gain by it.

Evacuation of the Ruhr, the premier said, had dominated everything at the international conference in London and he had "to choose between the re-establishment of an inter-allied entente and the continuance of isolated action."

DAWES TO ANNOUNCE POSITION ON LABOR

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice president, will make known his attitude toward trade unions in his speech at Augusta next Saturday, in which he will open the Republican campaign in Maine.

He announced this between trains at the Grand Central station today, in response to the question of one of several newspaper men who sought to interview him on the rear platform of the car on which a few minutes later he left for Westbrook, Conn.

"Do you wish to say anything concerning reports that you are unfriendly to trade unions?" he was asked.

"You will find all that in my Augusta speech," he replied. "Nobody who reads my speeches is going to have any doubt as to where I stand, but I am not going to make any stump speeches on a railway platform."

TREATY HAILED AS TRIUMPH OF REDS

(Associated Press)

MOSCOW, Aug. 21.—The negotiations of a treaty between Soviet Russia and the British government at the recent conference in London was hailed as a triumph for the red diplomacy at a meeting last night of the Moscow soviet.

The government will begin work on the further details of the agreement Saturday, after the soviet delegation makes its report to the council of commissioners.

Christian Ravosky, who headed the London delegation, and Foreign Minister Tchitcherin spoke to the workers at last night's meeting.

Ravosky, after recapitulating the progress of the negotiations and the terms of the agreement, said the treaty was not signed without scratches as its birth was most complicated. Its terms, he pointed out, did not infringe the principles of the soviet laws, regarding nationalization and the annulment of debts as the concession made was only of a practical character.

Only claims which the government considered practical or acknowledged to be necessary in compensation to social justice would be paid.

He predicted that the treaty would be ratified.

PEKIN, Aug. 21.—Yoshizawa, Japanese minister to China, and acting senior diplomat at Peking, has informed L. M. Karakhan, Russian ambassador to China of his refusal to circulate among the members of the diplomatic corps, representing the protocol powers, the Karakhan note regarding the transfer of the Russian legation to the Soviet government, it was announced today.

The refusal, it was said, was due to matters and personal accusations contained in the note. Yoshizawa is said to have suggested that Karakhan re-draft his note in more moderate terms.

Bryan Injured As Auto Turns Over

(Associated Press)

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 21.—William Jennings Bryan was injured early last evening when an automobile in which he was speeding from Suscola to Mattoon, Ill., turned over on the highway.

Mr. Bryan was bruised and cut about the head and face, but was able to give a scheduled lecture on arrival at Mattoon. News of the accident was withheld last night at Mr. Bryan's request for the reason that he did not want Mrs. Bryan, who is ill, at her home in Florida to know of the injury.

PERMISSION GIVEN BY COMMISSION TO ABROGATE SERVICE

Future Policy Of the Company Is Not Yet
Fully Determined

CARS LIKELY TO STOP FOR WHILE

Receipts Declared To Be Insufficient
For Expenses

While the Alabama Traction Co. has permission to discontinue its car service in the Twin Cities, it is not fully determined as yet, as to whether or not the cars will be taken off, according to Charles H. Eyster, local attorney of the company.

Mr. Eyster stated that by September 1 his company would determine its course as the local car service. Mr. Eyster intimated that in all probability the car service would be suspended for a while at least at the end of August.

On the ground that the receipts of the company have not been sufficient to make the local car service a paying proposition, following the purchase and use of such large numbers of automobiles, John B. Wessley, of Birmingham president of the traction company, asked the state public service commission for the right to discontinue the car service here.

The official reply of the public service commission is as follows: Alabama Traction company: Petition.

For authority to discontinue street railway service in the cities of Albany and Decatur, and to dispose of its property and to cease to do business.

Docket No. 4547
The petition in the above styled cause having been set down for hearing by this commission on Tuesday August 12, 1924, at ten o'clock a. m. in the city hall in Decatur, Alabama, the Alabama Public Service commission met at the said time and place to hear the same.

There were present and presiding, A. G. Patterson, President and H. F. Lee, associate commissioner and also I. F. McDonnell, chief engineer of the commission and the official stenographer.

The petitioner and the cities of Albany and Decatur were represented by counsel, and testimony in support of the petition, and also upon the general operations of the company's property was heard, and the traction and transportation business in the two municipalities was investigated. The representatives of said cities offered no testimony in the cause and no ground for denying said petition.

Upon investigation, the commission finds that the petitioner and its predecessor in title, the North Alabama Traction company, had conducted a general street railway business and operated cars in and between the cities of Albany and Decatur for more than ten years; that the business has never been profitable, and has never earned the interest on its bonded debt since the inception of the petitioner. In the last two years, due to the improvement of the streets of the two cities, by an expensive paving program, and the increased number of automobiles owned and used by the citizens of the two communities, the business of the company has very materially decreased, and the petitioners, according to the estimate is now operating at a dollars ($500.00) per month. The commission gave consideration to the possibilities of cheaper operations and also to the prospect of new business. It appeared from the testimony of several witnesses that there was not sufficient volume of business in the two communities to support and maintain the enterprise.

It is therefore, ordered, adjudged

Permission Given By Commission To Abrogate Service

and decreed by the Alabama Public Service Commission, that the prayer of the petitioner be granted, and that it be and is authorized to discontinue its street railway service in the cities of Albany and Decatur on September 1, 1924, and to dispose of its property and cease to do business after said date of September 1, 1924.

The commission expresses the hope that by cooperation between the communities served and the utility, some way may be found to continue the operation of the street cars, as it appears that approximately five to six hundred people use this service each day; and if any plan can be devised which may keep the utility in operation, even in a limited way, until the business of the company grows, this commission will render such assistance as lies within its power to bring about such a result.

To this end, it is further ordered by the commission as follows: That the petitioner be, and it is hereby, authorized and permitted to continue its said operations after said date of September 1, 1924, either to the same extent as heretofore or in such limited way as in the judgment of petitioner its offices and agents, will be best calculated to offer the most needed and called for service to the public and at the same time entail the least loss upon the petitioner. Provided further, that if the petitioner elects to and enters upon such permissive service herein authorized the same shall not be discontinued until after ten days' notice of the discontinuance thereof published in some newspaper in said city of Albany or Decatur, and after ten days' notice in writing to this Commission.

It is further ordered by the commission, that a copy of this opinion and order be mailed to the Mayor of each of said cities, and that a copy be furnished to the petitioner.

M'COYS DEFENSE IS ORGANIZING TODAY

(Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—Attorneys for Kid McCoy, former pugilist, charged with the murder of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, here August 12, today were organizing their forces for an attack on the iron ring of evidence which District Attorney Keyes believes he has welded around the 51-year-old fighter.

While they would not divulge their plans, they took occasion yesterday to deny that these plans provided for a plea of guilty by McCoy, when he appears before Judge Charles S. Crail next Monday.

The former motion picture actor and boxer was arraigned yesterday on the murder charge, as well as on three charges of assault with intent to kill and four charges of robbery, growing out of a shooting affray staged in and near Mrs. Mors' antique shop several hours after her death.

Before his attorney could ask for a postponement of the plea until Monday, McCoy shouted in answer to the murder charge: "I did not."

To the other charges, he was indifferent.

Meanwhile arrangements were made for his examination by additional defense attorneys, although there had been no repetition of the antics which Tuesday caused detectives to express the belief that Kid's mind had cracked under the strain of the shooting and his subsequent arrest.

The body of Mrs. Mors, it was announced by Albert A. Mors, her former husband, will be sent to her mother's home in New York.

FARM OUTLOOK IS GOOD STATES HIGH

"Wherever the farmers have worked their crops well and used proper fertilizer they may expect good crops," stated J. T. High, district farm agent, who was here today on his way to Madison county where Friday he will address an encampment of about 75 farm boys at Riverton.

Mr. High said the corn crop, owing to dry weather, was not quite so good in the Tennessee Valley as last year. He declared cotton farm were in much better shape than this time last year.

"The boll weevil's inroads have been very slight; whereas last year, owing to heavy rains and the fact he had a mild winter here year before last, he appeared in force."

"Except where the weevils were protected by the brows of mountains and thick woods near their hibernating places, they were great sufferers during the past winter."

Mr. High stated that "rust" in cotton caused by the red spider had appeared in some localities. He said he advised that as the red spider lives through the winter in violet beds about the yards, that other flowers take the place of violets.

Mr. High also advised that since spiders live through the winter in polk stalk beds, that all polk stalks be destroyed by the farmers.

"The outlook in this section is exceedingly good," declared Mr. High.

FARM NOTES

By J. C. Ford
County Farm Agent

Several hundred farmers in Morgan County need to be milking from five to ten cows each and selling cream and building up their land. Many of the nearby counties of Tennessee are doing this very thing.

Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday August 26, 27, and 28 have been set for the interested farmers of Morgan County to make a trip to learn just how they do it. If you are interested be on hand at Hartselle at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday morning or meet us at the Ferry at Decatur. Will make the trip in cars.

Red spider is doing a lot of injury to cotton at present. This trouble is hard to control often it once gets started. Walking through it spreads the trouble.

I have a supply of bulletins that might help to prevent it another year. If interested write for one.

The want columns offer a splendid lack of advertising space in the daily opportunity to the man who wants work and to the man who wants help. Advertise today its only a small sum that you will be glad to have spent. It is a wise investment.

John Green Back
From Florida Trip

John H. Green, chief clerk in the office of the Probate Judge of Morgan County has returned from Melbourne, Fla., after his vacation spent there, greatly aroused over the progress being made at this time in Florida on its state-wide road building projects.

Mr. Green expressed the belief that but for constitutional limitations in Alabama, which held down the amount of money that can be spent for public road work, that Alabama would soon be in the midst of a really big road building program.

"I saw one road nearing completion from Tampa to Melbourne," said Mr. Green, "where a large complicated machine, not only laid the paving but packed it and smoothed it as the machine moved along. Not a single human hand was used, as the machine did its work."

Mr. Green said that many of the so called "lateral roads" in Florida were built of shell gravel, but that the big trunk line roads were built of concrete and asphalt.

Albany, Ga., makes a bid for fame. In that municipality vagrant dogs are electrocuted.

Remembering the political path of his father, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is said to have designs on the governorship of New York state.

Knoxville, Tenn., breaks all records by placing 61 "drunks" under arrest over the week-end. It was a record for any period, officials explained.
The bootleggers must have been serving dynamite.

"I've got something for Mr. Ziegfeld, it came from a ship," was the ruse used by a process server to obtain entrance to the theatrical man's inner offices and serve a court summons on him.
"Who wouldn't accept a package when you were told it came from a ship," Ziegfeld explained.

Readers of newspapers frequently take their favorite papers to task for minor inaccuracies which really are no fault of the publication. It is necessary that newspapers, in the rush of the day, depend upon news sources which they have little time to investigate.

The St. Louis Star, as an indication of how hard newspapers work to eliminate all error, has chosen a novel method for checking up news accounts. The paper is large enough to permit a separate department to look after this one feature. After the day's editions are printed, the name of those persons who have been designated in the day's news are taken, and a copy of the story mailed to them, together with a questionnaire, asking whether or not there are any inaccuracies in the account.

So susceptible are Americans to flattery, that entirely too many believe there is not much room for improvement. Not many realize that Americans are among the most poorly educated people in the world, judging from the illiterates in this country compared to those in a country like Germany. The facts show that where this country has 9 per cent illiterates, Germany has only a fraction of 1 per cent. We boast of having a self governing country, but think of the hundreds of thousands who deliberately stay away from the polls, and feel they are perfectly right in doing so. Although it is known that all poll tax money goes to support education how many feel it their duty to pay their poll tax and vote.
Sometimes a few will pay up their poll tax; but when they do they feel so virtuous over the fact there is no living with them.

It is claimed by the "Wall Street Journal" that American politicians in their desire to curry favor with the masses have been largely to blame for the unusually high opinion Americans have of themselves, and their accomplishments. The Journal concludes that about half of the people do not care how they are governed. A paragraph from the Journal in this connection is as follows:

And in the case of "referendums," votes to authorize debt expansion and amendments to state constitutions, the result is deplorable. In some states less than 25 per cent for and against have settled the question of the soldiers' bonus. Is this popular government? To go a little deeper, is it what the constitution of the United States intends—is it representative government? The matter is one of the greatest importance to every business man and will have to be faced. It is not mere cynicism to say that the country is governed by the qualified voters who stay away from the polls, or to put it in another way, governed by politicians confirmed in their belief that half the people do not care how they are governed.

All lovers of fair play and justice will rejoice in the prompt decision of the Army Air Service to permit him to finish the round-the-world flight with his comrades despite the wreck of his original machine which had to be abandoned after the accident it suffered during the flight from the Orkneys to Iceland. It is now announced that Lieutenant Wade will be transported to Pictou Harbor, where a new plane, sent from Langley Field, will await him and his mechanic. From Picou Harbor it is planned to have him fly back to the United States with his more fortunate companions.

The decision of the Army Air Service is gratifyingly fair and just. The entire trouble suffered by Lieutenant Wade and his companion, Lieutenant Ogden, was due to no fault of either of them.
Up to that time he had behind him the unsurpassed record of 19,000 miles of flying, across two continents, across the Pacific and through the snowy waters contiguous to the Behring Sea.
With that record it would have been cruel to force him to return to America ignominiously on a steamship and witness the ovation which most assuredly awaits the returning birdmen.

He has braved all the hardships suffered by them; they excel him in luck, but not in pluck, and it is pleasing to know that the war department has responded to the spontaneous outburst of requests from all over the country and that Lieutenant Wade will be the pilot of one of the three planes which eventually wing their way into New York.—Nashville Tennessean.

Freight rates, quoted for units of one hundred pounds, or per ton, or per car, or whatever the unit may be, generally do not give one an accurate idea of the cost of transportation in units of ultimate consumption. The following, taken from a circular published by the Pennsylvania Railroad, is interesting since it illustrates transportation costs in terms that are easy to understand:

Railroad transportation costs are credited with an importance in the cost of living entirely unwarranted by the facts.

Of the 10 cents paid for a loaf of bread in New York, Chicago, or other of the larger cities, according to the Department of Agriculture, the railroads receive a third of a cent for transporting the wheat to the mills and a sixth of a cent for bringing the flour to the baker. If the railroads carried the wheat and flour for nothing, the saving on the price of a 10-cent loaf of bread would be only half a cent, promising no reduction to the consumer.

The freight charge on a pound of ham from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to New York is slightly less than three-quarters of a cent. If dealer's purchases are made from reasonable sources of supply, one never pays as much as a cent a pound in freight charges on sugar, coffee, oatmeal, potatoes, eggs, fresh meat, butter, or some twenty-five other important articles of food. Railroads receive about 6 cents for carrying a suit of clothes 300 miles, and about 5 cents for transporting a pair of shoes a similar distance.

Freight rates on American railroads are the lowest in the world. The average rate on a ton of freight carried one mile in the United States is approximately 1 cent. For an equivalent service English railroads receive three times as much and French and German roads about four times as much.

Despite these facts, demands for still lower rates continue.

Crippling of railroad service would cost the people far more than they could hope to save as a result of rate reductions.

The present campaign for lower freight rates warrants careful examination. Many who lead the clamor in this direction are also enlisted in every scheme to restrict and hamper the railroads.
In any event, these questions demand an answer:

Do lower freight rates promise anything more than an enforced reduction in the wages paid railroad employees, a crippling of service to shippers, and a slowing up in railroad expenditures for maintenance and development?

Is it possible that the cause of government ownership is being served by this campaign to break down the earning power of American railroads?—Trade and Transportation.

ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:
I am a girl in my teens and I want your wonderful advice. I have been keeping company with a man in his twenties. Although I love him very much and feel like I could never love again as I love him, I do not know whether he loves me or not. He says that he loves me but some times I feel that he doesn't. How can I find out his love for me? I could give him up but it would be the hardest thing I ever tried.

Melba.

Melba:
Aren't you a bit pessimistic over the outcome of your love affair. Remember my dear that when doubt enters the window then love fly's away.

You are a little young to take the matter so seriously although you may sincerely care for the man that you speak of. The only proof of a man's love, my dear, is his desire to make you his wife. Until that time I would worry about holding his love of giving him up.

WHITE HOUSE COFFEE
OPENS SOUTHERN PLANT

New Factory at Portsmouth, Virginia, Solely to Render a Better Service and to Meet Southern Demand

Appreciation merits appreciation.
The welcome response that White House Coffee and Tea have had in the South for many years has prompted the Dwinell-Wright Company, importers and roaster of this popular brand, to establish a new and complete factory at Portsmouth, Virginia, for the sole purpose of better serving the Southern territory. The facilities at this point will be fully the equal (so far as efficiency is concerned) of the other plants in Boston and Chicago. The same care in blending and roasting, the same scrupulous precision in selection and importation of the coffee beans will be maintained to assure the same calibre and quality that has made White House a guide name to satisfaction.

But the housewife is assured of a constant fresh supply at her grocer which is also essential. In short, the new plant is a Southern institution by itself, managed by Southern men for the benefit of Southern women and to co-operate in better manner with the Southern grocer.

Steamship Mauretania Sets Record

When the great British liner Mauretania broke the world's record from Cherbourg to New York in crossing the Atlantic in five days, three hours and twenty minutes she was commanded by Captain A. H. Rostron, who was master of the Carpathia when that liner rushed to the assistance of the Titanic when the latter struck a iceberg and sank with great loss of life in 1912. The former record for the Atlantic trip from Cherbourg was held by the Leviathan, American liner, and was five days, seven hours and twenty minutes.

But before my second baby came I used 'Mother's Friend' and baby was born with only a few pains and before a doctor could arrive. I also used 'Mother's Friend' with my third baby. I was only sick a little while and she also was born before the doctor arrived. I cannot praise 'Mother's Friend' enough. I tell every one I see who is expecting to become a mother about 'Mother's Friend'."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Features Service, Inc.

The Parting Question of Caution Lillian Asked Madge.

I WAS fatigued enough in mind and body to be exceedingly grateful for Lillian's prescription to "get into bed and sleep until daylight," but, with experience of her little ways, I looked steadily at her.

"If you'll follow your own prescription," I answered. "She threw up her head impatiently. 'Don't be an anointed idiot, just because you know how,' she quoted from my mother-in-law, then laid down the law with decision. 'I have all day to sleep. The minute I have seen the last of you and your charges I shall tumble into bed and sleep all day probably.'"

"Yes, I know your 'probably,'" I glibbed. "You already have an appointment with Mrs. Marks."

"For the first time her husband gets out of the house, which will be nearly noon," she interrupted. "Seriously, Madge, please don't upset the applecart. You'll need all the sleep you can get for that drive down the island, and that's the important thing just now."

I protested no more, for there was a finality in Lillian's tone which I knew of old. It makes absolutely useless any attempt to turn her from a line of action she has marked out for herself. Secretly I was glad that my conscience and my husband were at peace, and I crossed carefully into bed, screened my face from the light and immediately fell into a sleep so profound that the next thing I knew was Lillian shaking me.

"You must have needed sleep," she said, pityingly. "I'm so sorry to wake you, but it's getting light."

"YOU LOOK WIDE AWAKE." Through the window I saw the melting of the darkness into the gray of the dawn, and sprang from the bed, looking intently at her. "How do you manage it?" I asked. "You look positively fresh and wide awake, and yet I'll bet you haven't had a wink of sleep."

"Won't take your wager," she replied. "But I've had what's better than a hot pillow and an ice-cold needle shower. Hurry with your dressings, lady. Your breakfast is almost ready. I'll get the girls up as soon as you're finished dressing and give them their breakfast while you're gone to present the signal ring of the Earl of Essex."

The merry, quizzical glance which accompanied her words brought a quick flush to my cheek, and then anger at my own embarrassment made my face fairly burn. I knew that Lillian was getting a bit of quiet amusement out of the contretemps which compelled me, because of a forgotten garage check, to summon Harry Underwood from his unknown lodgings with the scrawl which he melodramatically had given me for some terrible emergency.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: Would you mind telling me what to do in a case like mine? I am twenty years old and have been engaged to a man ten years older than I for four months.

At first I was absolutely crazy about him. I couldn't see him anywhere without wanting to be near him. But now I have lost some of that feeling and, although I still care for him a lot, it is not the same as it was at first.

For one thing, he asks so many questions. Why, when we go out in the evening, his conversation consists almost entirely of questions? I try to be patient and answer them nicely—but inside I am just simply furious. He invariably asks me if I wish to go out with anyone else, and I know I have said "No" a million times. I don't think he believes me!

He has talked to him about all this in a very nice, patient way and also in an indignant way—but still it continues the same. I can't stand it much longer, but I want to tell him, I know. Please, Annie Laurie, tell me what to do! I want him to be happy—goodness knows I do—and I want to be happy, too, but how can two persons be happy when they are forever quarreling?

DREADFULLY WORRIED. Try to forget this one fault of your fiancé if you really love him, because it is not a fault of character. Don't try to make him change. Perhaps he never will. But stop being ruffled by the little peculiarity. Think of the fine traits he has for which you admire and love him.

No one is perfect, you know. Perhaps you have some one little fault that annoys him. If you go through life with him in this philosophical, good-natured way you are sure to be happy. And so will he, Good Luck.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: We are two girls in our teens and wish you would give us advice on these questions:

1. Is it wrong for a girl to go car riding with a young man when no other one is along?
2. Is it wrong to let a young man kiss her when leaving her home?

TWO DIMPLED CHUMS.
1. Yes; you should have a chaperone.
2. Yes; this is wrong unless he is her fiancé.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to the Editor should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

How Wagner Gave the World the Music Drama.

CENTURIES hence, historians studying the nineteenth century are liable to decide that the wisest king of that age, and the monarch who accomplished most for posterity, was a crazy man, Ludwig of Bavaria, who spent the last thirty years of his life and died in an asylum.

For Ludwig gave Richard Wagner his chance and Wagner founded a new and enduring art, the music drama.

Grand opera in the days when Richard Wagner was a young man was a curious affair, consisting of a dozen pretty tunes strung together with a sort of chanting.

Wagner Worked Till He Was Seventy at His Great Labor.

known as recitative, and accompanied by an orchestra not much more impressive than that which accompanies a modern popular song. To hold interest, the stories of these operas were terrifically grim and sometimes gruesome.

The melodies were almost always cheerful and bright. They were written to afford tenors and sopranos opportunities for vocal pyrotechnics. Such pieces as "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Traviata," and "Barber of Seville" are typical of the pre-Wagner form of opera. They remain in the repertory to-day to serve as vehicles for great singers of the Calli Curly type.

Richard Wagner believed that music should be dramatic, that the voice and voices together should move along, revealing a story whose moods and incidents were perfectly reflected by the score.

A scoffing world greeted his theories. His mighty music drama, "Tannhauser," containing some of the most sublime passages in all musical literature, was howled down by a Paris musical mob and did not get a second chance for sixteen years.

Richard Wagner believed that music should be dramatic, that the voice and voices together should move along, revealing a story whose moods and incidents were perfectly reflected by the score.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving the Outdoor-Comforts Problem for Kiddies.

SUMMER time is outdoor time for children of all ages. Mothers who realize this fact have probably equipped their little ones for the season, so far as they have not yet fully grasped the fact that outdoor play needs special outfitting, these hints may prove helpful.

Not all of us are so situated that we can go away for our vacations. We must do as well as we can at home. But with a good sized porch and a yard of even small proportions keeping happy and healthy at home is not difficult. Stay-at-home youngsters may be made happy with a small sand pile in place of a sand.

If the sand is dumped on a wooden platform five or six feet square with a three-inch moulding around three sides, the sand will be kept together. A skelton frame can be fitted over the top and a tarpaulin can be spread over it to shield the players from extreme sun's rays.

Send toys never more fascinating than these are this year. Sand moulds of all sorts, from tiny bread-and-bake forms to large, ornate, shells, and sea dwellers of all sorts may be had. Then there is the tower, sand-train, wee wheelbarrow and the newest and best in the form of a boat. The shovels are signed to represent a sail when not otherwise employed.

Then there are dolls that come clad in oilcloth and are weather-proof. Oilcloth cats of various sizes and oilcloth puppies may be bought. They look none the worse for being left outdoors overnight. Hammocks of all sizes from that for dolly to one that looks like a hammock for an adult are delightful for outdoors. These hammocks are not the sort that are made of twine and rope, but of canvas, they are just plain sailer hammocks of pearl color.

A small tent is of course a delight to play house in and is not a very expensive toy, nor does it take up a great deal of room. A small table and chairs are sufficient equipment to make an ideal outdoor dining room and children just adore eating in the open.

Little oilcloth table-mats and blue and wooden and paper plates are part of the picnic equipment, which incidentally saves dish-washing and laundry. The use of this informal table furniture does not hurt the part of a summer game which is just part with the season, leaving only improved health and a happy memory.

Now most important of all is the plea for "comfy" clothes to play in.

These, needless to say, consist of rompers in various materials for both boys and girls. Sun-bonnets to match are very quaint and cunning but are hot, and no child keeps its head covered in summer. Some times a light shade hat of peanut straw can be inserted upon in broad sunlight, but it will have to be put on with adhesive plaster if mothers expect to have it stay in place.

Girls also wear khaki if they are old scouts, and khaki knickerbockers are comfortable for hiking and outdoors, but in the city or in town they are less desirable.

Sound is deadened by snow. Snow will not quench thirst. Lotteries originated in ancient Rome. It is estimated that there are 100,000 miles of canal in China.

YOUR HEALTH

What to Do to Banish Stiff Neck or Other Pain

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IT is not pleasant to wake up in the morning with a painful twist in your neck. On trying to turn your head it feels as if a stiletto had been driven into your muscles. Sometimes the pain is in one arm, in the leg, or in the small of the back. It may have been in one or two fingers or the whole hand. Lameness and stiffness of special muscles is due to over-use or wrong use. Unaccustomed demands result in painful protest.

Bad position at the desk, or long-continued and cramped attitude in any undertaking will result in stiffness of certain muscles.

If you work late at night, making up your income tax return, or trying to balance a badly-kept set of books, you are sure to suffer for it.

If you drive a car you may find the muscles of your arm lame for weeks at a time. You may have a stiff neck.

These symptoms are the result of excessive or improper muscular effort.

Most soreness and stiffness of muscles can be easily explained. When once your attention is called to it and you seriously seek the cause it will be speedily found. To avoid muscle strain, ease and freedom of movement must be studied. An erect figure, proper posture at every activity, and grace in movement should be the pride of every person.

Consider the persons who carry burdens on their heads. In my city I sometimes see women carrying baskets, bundles or loads of wood, carefully poised on the top of the head. Notice their upright and graceful bodies, their splendidly-set shoulders, their full chests, their firmly-placed feet.

Contrast these agile and perfect figures with the slouching, shuffling, sloppy carriage of many young men and women. Brace up, throw down the shoulders, lift the chin, draw in the stomach. Carry your self proudly and act as if you felt the joy of living.

Sometimes, and not uncommonly, indeed, stitches of pain here and there, wandering, elusive and rather indefinite, may have other causes than bad position. Stiff neck, kink in the side of the back, or disturbance anywhere in the muscular system may come from causes other than excessive muscular demands.

Bad teeth, bad tonsils, infected sinuses or infection in some other focus, may be responsible for much misery.

Probably the most important factor beside bad posture or strain is constipation. Absorption from long-retained waste material may shower itself by muscular or nerve disturbance, the poison developing from the fermentation of fecal material may cause serious attacks of stiff neck and other pains.

Modern life is filled with many a menace to health. Lack of exercise, hasty meals, overeating, long hours, deprivation of sleep and all the other things that detract from muscular vigor, have their effects upon the external body and the internal organs.

A return to normal living, normal exercise, normal eating, normal sleeping and normal ambitions, will prevent the uncomfortable and disabling consequences of frequently repeated muscular and nervous pains.

These symptoms are probably due to nervousness. You should consult a nerve specialist or go to one of the large hospital clinics for an examination and treatment.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. ## Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About an Effective Traveling Costume.

"I HAVE to go on a long, narrow train trip, and I want a cool frock to wear."

This was the message I took over the phone for Madame, while she was out at luncheon to-day.

The person at the other end of the wire was Mrs. Brown, who has always gotten her things from Madame.

Mrs. Brown is thin and pretty and about thirty-five, and Madame has a knack of knowing just what she likes and looks best in.

I delivered the message when Madame returned.

"Mrs. Brown is thin and pretty and about thirty-five, and Madame has a knack of knowing just what she likes and looks best in."

"I should like to give you an idea," she added.

Mrs. Brown took the sketch, and I told her from her pleased expression that she was going to like the frock just as it was drawn.

Madame began explaining. "The slightest amount of fullness in the sides, and narrow bands of the material extend over it and fasten at either hip."

"I adore the soft effect of the scarf collar," Mrs. Brown commented.

"The black and white chiffon is repeated on the sleeves," Madame told her. "They are gathered into narrow strips of the black and white that tie at the cuffs."

"It's just what I want," Mrs. Brown said, enthusiastically. "And now about a hat?"

Madame took the sketch back and with a few strokes of her agile pencil, outlined a small cloche affair, trimmed with birds.

"I should like this in thin black straw with yellow canary birds for trimming," she informed the client.

Mrs. Brown thought it would match the frock admirably, and made an appointment to come in to-morrow for her first fitting on the frock and hat both.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, AUGUST 22.

Although the affairs of the day may present many lively and interesting developments these may be attended by a degree of trouble and anxiety, judging by certain adverse planetary configurations. It may be that this disagreeable angle may be due to one's own irritability or inclination to quarrel and do rash or impulsive things, as incited by the mischievous-making Mars. The square of the luminaries is also read as foreshadowing trouble, especially for those in the employment of or those occupying places of power. Be quick and amiable.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a troublesome year, to which their own turbulent conduct may contribute largely. Those in the employment should safeguard their position of others. A child born on this day may have an impulsive and headstrong disposition, causing its parents much anxiety unless they carefully direct its early training. It will have a tendency to be indolent, as well as extravagant in the use of what money it will have difficulty in earning, unless well-trained in early life.

About Tires

With scores of different brands of tires on the market, each looking pretty much like the others—with everyone claiming the best—with this and that "special offer"—it's no wonder car owners are confused.

But the safe, sane, sensible, time-saving thing to do is to buy a good tire at the right price from a good dependable dealer.

Isn't that the way you buy nearly everything else? Ask our price on Goodyears in your size.
